Five withdraw from board consideration

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Gov. Eric Greitens said last week he was withdrawing his five appointees to the State Board of Education because they had withdrawn from consideration for their posts.

Greitens said his five appointees to the board had withdrawn from consideration because they had been unable to agree on a way forward.

Greitens said he had received a letter from the board members that they were unable to agree on a way forward.

Greitens said he had been working with the board members to try to find a way forward.

Greitens said he would continue to work with the board members to try to find a way forward.

Greitens said he would announce his decision on what to do next later this month.
